

ANDERSON-SINCLAIR,

One of the prettiest of church weddings was solemnized at Hannaford at high noon of Wednesday, August 15th, 1906, when Alfred Orlando Anderson led to the altar Miss Sara Jean Sinclair and by the Rev. O. D. Purinton, were made man and wife.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Daniel Sinclair, is one of the fairest products of North Dakota, highly accomplished, a fine musician, and well fitted in every respect to adorn the home in which she will be a bright light.

She was beautifully dressed in a white silk mull made over white silk, inset with baby irish lace with applique lace yoke, her only ornament being a handsome bracelet, the gift of the groom. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

The groom is the popular and efficient cashier of the First National Bank, who came here from Iowa a year and a half ago, and who, by his many sterling qualities, has won for himself a host of friends. He was dressed in the conventional black.

The bride was attended by her sister as maid of honor, who was dressed in green silk mull, made with lace. The other bridesmaids, Miss Fay Anderson of Fargo and Miss Mabel Mills were dressed in white mull. The maids carried sweet peas.

The groom was attended by his cousin Edward Savre, W. C. Langdon and Andrew Anderson.

As the wedding party moved up the central aisle of the church to the soft strains of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin, they were preceded by Florence and Elinor Sinclair, nieces of the bride who were daintily gowned in white and carried white sweet peas.

They were met at the altar by the Rev. Purinton, who, as the sweet strains of "Traumvei" and "Hearts and Flowers" floated through the church, in his most solemn and impressive manner pronounced the words which united them for life, and as one they left the church to the now jubilant strains of Lohengrin.

The church was handsomely and tastefully decorated with golden-rod and green. Beautiful ivies twined over the windows and arches, and mammoth ferns lent their beauty to the occasion.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride followed by a bountiful luncheon.

The house was hung with woodbine over all windows and doorways, the parlor and bridal table being decorated with white sweet peas, bouquets of the same flowers being in all the other rooms.

Each guest carried home a box of wedding cake tied with white ribbon and white sweet peas. Many handsome and appropriate presents were received. The happy couple left for the East on the afternoon train and will be at home to their friends in the nest which is now building, after November 15th.

If the good wishes of a host of friends have any influence on their destiny, then indeed their future will be a bright and happy one.
