

Little Bruce Moffatt escaped very serious injury and probably death last Monday very narrowly. He pulled a heavy grindstone on top of him which injured his nose and neck quite badly. His mother heard his cries and found him pinned down with the heavy stone. Had it struck him a few inches lower it would have shut off his wind and he would have been unable to cry out. Dr. Westley attended him and he is getting along nicely.