

Passed Away.

Architect W. C. Albrant Died Early Thursday Morning of Pneumonia.

Last evening the news from bed side of W. C. Albrant were to the effect that he was critically ill, but that hopes were still held out for a change for the better. It was realized then that unless a change soon came he would not last through the night. Just as the last forms were ready for press a telephone message came saying that Mr. Albrant had just died. He had been ill but a short time, and his case developed into pneumonia.

Mr. Albrant was well known over the state and had many friends. No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral.

The bereaved relatives have the sympathy of the community in their sad loss.—Call.

Mr. Albrant was the architect who designed our new school building and his death is regretted by those of our own people who were acquainted with him.
