

the traveling men.

Edvard Bakken, who came from Norway five weeks ago and was on his way out Mr. J. Thompson's farm, died at St. Luke's hospital at Fargo Friday evening, where he had laid for over a month suffering with typhoid-pneumonia. Mrs. M. J. Thompson, his cousin, went to Fargo Friday, and two of his aunts, who live in Moorhead, was with him at the time of his death. The remains were interred in a Moorhead cemetery. He was only about nineteen years old, and when he arrived here was apparently strong and vigorous. His death is a particularly hard blow to his aged parents in Norway, whose only child he was.
