

The foundation for the Lutheran church is now completed, and the building will doubtless be commenced in the near future. Binford will then have a church of some denomination and we eagerly await the completion of the same. Nothing gives a town a better appearance than does a church and nothing is of greater value to the citizens from any standpoint, either moral or otherwise.