

Roller skating is the rage all over the country now, and Binford is right in line with the best of them in that as in everything else. B. B. Nelson has skates for everybody, and his opera house makes a good rink. He had his grand opening Tuesday evening and nearly everybody in attendance took a whirl—and some of those, getting tired of the whirl, took a header. Frank Wolfe got tired several times and took the headers—“just as a means of entertaining the spectators.” There are a number of good skaters around here, and a lively interest will be manifested in the popular pastime by all lovers of skating.
