

The local telephone exchange is about completed. The central office is located in the new addition to O. S. Gunderson & Co.'s store. There are in all thirty-three phones in town and the line having been extended several miles into the rural districts there are to be a great many more phones installed there. This now brings us in ready touch with the telephoning world and marks another important step for Binford in way of progress. Miss Alma Borgerson has been installed at "central" to attend to your wants, and all that now remains for you to do is to ring up central and tell your troubles to the phone.
