

O. S. Gunderson received a "Crown" piano, Friday and a bunch of the boys got together and helped get it into the house. Bill Rickford was trying to pretend that he was carrying one end of the instrument alone, but, as the writer was tugging laboriously at the same end, he can vouch for every pound that Bill carried. After the piano was put inside and Mrs. Gunderson had finished putting on the finishing touches, Bill sat down to the instrument and gave us all a rare treat by playing several of his choicest selections. The piano is a present to Miss Anna from her father, and she is to be complimented upon receiving such a valuable gift.