

Harry Johnston has purchased a fine string of stuffed birds including owls, prairie eagles, snipes, birds of paradise and prairie chickens. He bought them of Austin Rorvig last week just prior to the departure of that noted taxidermist for Canada. Harry says his is blooded stock and he has the birds for sale, the only trouble being that the owls and eagle all commence to crow too early in the morning.