

whirl at it.

Mrs. Knapp has greatly beautified the grave of her late husband, Martin Knapp, by having a handsome granite tomb stone erected there. The stone is a perfect beauty and Mrs. Knapp is deserving of great credit in selecting such a superb piece of sculpture as the one which marks the grave of her husband.