

A SWELL AFFAIR

The masquerade ball last evening was one of the nicest affairs ever known. All the dancing public from all directions poured in until by the time the dance started the hall was full of people representing scores of different characters of beauty and of humor. The costumes were very good and some of them of exceptional beauty, while again some were very comic. Others again were very unique as to originality and were also good. One of the latter was that of Miss Susie Larson who wore a dress of white cambric upon which was printed the entire issue of the Bioford Times bearing date of December 17th, 1906. The idea was original with Miss Larson and others and when the Times force was asked to print the cloth for that purpose, why, it can be readily seen that there was no hesitation whatever. We wish to thank all who were connected with this matter, for it made a good showing and looked very neat on this charming young lady.

The prize for the most handsome lady's costume was won by Mrs. Upton who represented an Indian maid, and the gentleman's prize was won by Arthur Idsvog. Messrs Amadon, Claydon and Goffe were the judges.
