

Jacob Myhre was in town Monday, and tells of a chicken out at the farm that will knock all the spots of Hart & Elliott's feathered freaks. The two extra feet are located just behind the other two and are considerably smaller, but they are there and Jake has a four-legged chicken. He is taking extra pains with this chicken in order that it may live to support itself by putting its extra pins on exhibition. You will see Uncle Jake hiking out with that chicken under his arm one of these days, and he will make his fortune in a comparatively short time.
