

Goose hunting by automobile is the latest. A. Rhodes reports that while they were out hunting last week they would follow the geese with their autos and finally get under them and secure a few shots. One flock was chased up against the wind until it crossed a rough, rock prairie and got out of distance. The chase was very exciting and had there been no rough or low land in the way the boys would have run right into the big flock. When flying machines are perfected the goose hunters will be able to drive the geese and ducks in as easily as the cowboys round up a herd of cattle.—Griggs Co. Sentinel.

Dead and great combination offer