

Julyus Thora was in town Monday and it was the first time since the last time which was last summer some time. He informed us that he has rented his father's farm for the coming season and expects to farm on a large scale. He has about completed his college course, and thinks he will rusticate on the farm awhile now to work up his muscular department to the degree that it had reached before he retired the last time. We wish him success in his farming operations.
