

Mrs. S. R. Klein met with sudden death last Monday while enroute from Crary to her home near McHenry. According to reports the accident occurred near the place where Martin Burke met with his fatal accident last autumn. Mrs. Klein and her daughter were returning from Crary, at which place she had been working in the interest of christianity, and it was while coming down a hill near Tolna that a portion of the harness parted, permitting the buggy pole to drop to the ground which frightened the horses so that they ran away, running the pole into the ground which brought the vehicle to a sudden stop, throwing Mrs. Klein and her daughter out. It was then that she received internal injuries that caused her death a short time late. Her sudden demise came as shock to her hosts of friends. The funeral takes place today at 2 o'clock
