

BOWLING

Married vs. Singles

Last Friday evening the married and singles met at the bowling alley to show each other how to bowl, with the result that the singles won out by the small amount of 10 pins in the three games. It was decided to play again Monday evening. This time, just to show the Singles that they didn't understand the game, the married team won out with 185 pins to the good. Some of the married men, not being satisfied with this decided to play one more game the result to decide which team should be champion. This time, apparently, the single men were 'broke'. as we haven't heard the married men talking much about bowling since.
