

cannot travel in so swift a class.

J. D. Reid has a new ad in this issue of the Times. His place of business will be known as "Jack's Place", and is located in the Ford building opposite the drug store. He expects to add a billiard table to his equipment and with all his stock, etc., will have as good a pool and billiard hall as any in the state. He will run a neat and clean place and will stand for no rowdyism or rough house. Jack is popular among the boys and will no doubt get a share of the patronage.

Continued on page 4 from A. M.