MEAT MARKET 11 e C CHANGED HANDS e y 8 s 1 F. G. Lewis Disposed of His Ineterests to J. C. Thinge elstad. ıt e t e A deal was closed last Sature day whereby J. C. Thingelstad t becomes the owner of the Pioneer Meat Market, formerly owned by -I a F. G. Lewis. t 0 t Under the ownership of Mr. y Lewis, the meat market has been P e kept in first class shape-always V g neat and clean-and has even caused words of commendation i 11 on its sanitary condition from the h d pure food inspector, who visited u e here last fall. Much of this cret e b dit is due, however, to J. D. Reid. ıl the butcher. There are no bett f-C ter meat carvers in this neck of f the woods than "Jack." He has P made himself very popular with C the buying public. As to his fus ture intentions he is yet unde-S t i cided. s There is no reason to suspect li e n that the same service wont be . accorded the patrons of the shop i n in the future. Mr. Thingelstad 0 Ö has secured the services of L. n 1 Jacobs, a competent butcher, it đ who will have complete charge. S e Mr. Jacobs is no novice in the p p meat business. He served an it 7 apprenticeship of fourteen years tl c with the Stewart meat market at b • Grand Forks, and was with E. S 1 E. Downe, of Cooperstown for it О two years. Since then he has 14 tl conducted a shop of his own in 4 Jessie. Mr. Jacobs is a man of family, " They will move here in a short n time. 2
