

Ben E. Nelson will add another pool table to his popular hall. The one he has now is in use most of the time by those "championship belt" fellows and it is almost impossible to get a table when they're around. The new table will be here about the 15th. Ben figures that the best way to a man's heart is through his stomach—and he pretty near ought to know—so he has decided to put in a lunch counter. He will serve coffee and sandwiches and will carry a nice line of pastries. These latter improvements will no doubt add to the popularity of Ben's place.
