

The new depot is assuming the form of something in the line of a very nice looking building and will be a valuable improvement to the appearance of the railroad property here.

When the tank is finished and the engines begin to take water here, we guess there will be something doing. There's no use talking, if you want to live in a good town come to Binford, and you have found it.