

Tomorrow, the people of Binford will vote on the question of building a school house. Some time ago a vote was taken for that purpose, but owing to a mistake in the publication of the notice of such election it is necessary to go through the proceedings again. At the previous election a handsome majority of the votes were cast for the school house, and we believe fewer votes will be cast against the proposition than before. No one can deny the fact but that Binford is in great need of a larger school house. It is the intention of the citizens of the town to erect a first-class building, one large enough to meet the needs of the town for some years to come. It will be erected of stone and brick, with four good size rooms and will be steam heated throughout. Binford will then have a school building that will compare favorably with those of any
