

happy to relate that, altho the interment of the little boy had taken place during his absence, he found the wife and mother improving in health and bearing up well under the terrible ordeal she had experienced. The family is indeed deserving of the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community and we offer to them our condolence in their sorrow.

Miss Minnie M. Nelson of Hutchinson, Minnesota, arrived here Saturday to begin teaching the fall term of our village school and entered upon her duties Monday morning. Miss Nelson comes to us very highly recommended and she has proof of being very well qualified for the work and the board of education can consider themselves fortunate in securing her services.

The crossing at the junction of Whinnery street and Binford avenue is being improved this week by constructing a plank cross walk out to the railroad right-of-way and tiling is being put in across Whinnery street to serve as a culvert in place of the old wooden culvert which has served during the past. Binford is constantly making valuable improvements and it is today one of the neatest and most progressive little towns in the state. It always will be too, for it has just the right class of business men to make it forge
