

“School days, school days, dear old golden rule days; readin’ an’ riteing an’ rithmetic, taught to the tune of the lick-ory stick” will commence next Monday morning. Vacation days are over and next week the school children of Binford will be back at their desks for the nine long months of study and recitation. The board of education have been getting things in readiness for the opening day and the regular swing of the school year will open without a hitch. The teachers are expected tomorrow or Saturday.
