

the dance.

Anton Falla told the Times scribe of a peculiar manner in which a young bull was killed on his farm last week. His children have a swing in the barn and the bull became entangled in the rope and on trying to free itself the rope became tighter around his neck, strangling himself. Anton says he cannot account for the rash act, except that he might have been delirious on that come: dope.