

SALUTATORY.

With this issue the plant and good will of the Times passes into other hands, the undersigned having bought the interests of the former publisher, O. S. Gunderson.

The paper will be conducted along the same lines as under the old ownership. I have retained the services of Mr. Peterson, as editor and manager, and he will be responsible for its conduct.

First of all, the Times will be a NEWSpaper—constantly striving for the best interests and up-building of our little city. The news will be treated in an impartial manner.

Politically, the Times will remain Republican. It will advocate that which is clean and progressive within the party, and support aspirants for office that are pledged to those ideals.

Hoping to merit a continuance of your patronage, I remain,

Yours,

A. NORSTRUM.

VALEDICTORY.

It is with a feeling of regret that I relinquish the ownership of the Times, but other matters of more importance have compelled me to make the move.

During the short period that the Times has been in my hands, the business relations of its patrons and myself have been very pleasant, and we might add, very profitable. To those who have supported the paper and made the venture possible at a time when a paper for Binford looked very dark, I extend my hearty thanks.

I sincerely trust that the same harmonious relations exist between the patrons and the new publisher.

O. S. GUNDERSON.
