

the smallest.

O. S. Gunderson left yesterday for Leeds, where he will engage in the mercantile business. Mr. Gunderson is one of the pioneers in this community, coming here in 1901 from Cooperstown. He entered the mercantile business and continued in that line until 1908. He was appointed postmaster in 1902, and is still serving in that capacity, being granted a leave of absence for some time. He has held many important offices in the village, being a member of the board of education, and various other offices in connection with affairs of the village. He served on the board of county commissioners for four years. It can be truly said that Mr. Gunderson was one of the town's best boosters—never missing an opportunity to do the town some good. In his business dealings he is honest and upright. In lodge and social doings he took a prominent part. He will retain his property interests here for some time yet. The family will remain until June, so the children can finish the school term. Binford loses a good citizen. What is our loss is Leeds' gain.
