Hannaford Enterprise: The Monarch elevator caught fire and burned down last Thursday, the fire being discovered about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. For a while the Farmers elevator and the N. P. water tank were threatened, but with the aid of the chemical engine and a constant supply of water furnished thru the railroad company's pipes, these structures were kept drenched and thus saved from the flames. A. J. Reddelien of the Brooks Elevator Co. is now in town looking after the salvage for the insurance companies. The fire started in the top of the elevator and it is believed through a hot box.
