

position as foreman of a new paper that will soon be published from that place. Mr. Jenson is a young man of good habits and is very well fitted for his new position. He makes [good wherever he is employed, and the Sentinel wishes him prosperity in the "farther west." His many friends here heartily second the good wishes of this paper.—Sentinel.

Sentinel, Dec. 1, M. Jenson of