

Accidentally Shot

Charles LaMotte, a farmer living near Deehr postoffice, suffered a dangerous gunshot last Wednesday. While feeding the stock Mr. LaMott noticed a rabbit near the barn. He sent his boy to the house for the gun, telling him to put in one shell. The shot only broke the legs of the rabbit and Mr. LaMotte used the gun as a club to kill it, not knowing that there was still a shell in the barrel. The gun was discharged and the shot tore through the left side of his body between his lungs and intestines, carrying with it a watch, which was torn to pieces. It was with great difficulty that the attending physician removed the fragments of the watch. It is hoped that the injured man will recover.
