

Clarence Lindsay drove in from the country Tuesday, after a prolonged visit at the Fred Smith home. Clarence arrived just in time to board the south-bound freight train for Cooperstown, where he made straightway for the court house, and made known his mission to Judge Carleton. He procured the necessary document. He returned to Binford on the passenger—and lo! his troubles have just begun. Some curiosity seekers—the horrid things—were bent on getting the facts of the case, by fair or foul means, so forthwith went after them—unceremoniously, at that. Confidentially, we were pledged to secrecy but it's our business to tell confidences—the happy event will take place next Saturday, Jan. 15,
