

Photographer Partridge of St. Paul has accompanied the snow bucking expeditions of the Northern Pacific Railway Co. since the middle of January, for the purpose of procuring stereoscopic views of the various conditions and scenes along the several routes he has traveled. He informed the writer that he came out for a ten days' trip, but he had then been out 25 days, and had no idea as to when he would get home again. While here he took three views of the main street of Binford, and had taken views all along this branch as well as in other parts he had visited, and they will doubtless be of great interest even to our own people. We understand Geo. Lockett & Co. will have these views on sale at their store as soon as they can get them here, Mr. Partridge having obtained the firm name among those to whom he will have lists of the views sent.
