

Joe Perkins handed the TIMES a sample of some crab apples and plums raised on his farm. He has only a small orchard now but has met with such good luck that he intends to add to it. He has a fine wind break of willow trees, and believes in this country as a fruit growing country if properly cared for.