

The masquerade at the opera house on Thanksgiving evening was a grand success. About 75 masked couples were on the floor, the wicker causing ones no end of merriment, while others showed excellent taste in their make-up. Prizes were awarded to: John Thune for best dressed gentleman, representing an Indian. Lige Pratt won the booby prize. He was dressed in a suit of lime sacks—kind of advertising his own business. The prize for the best dressed lady was awarded to Mrs. A. D. Shaw, her costume representing the sky with stars. The comic lady's prize was awarded to Mrs. C. E. Peterson, dressed as "Topsy". Supper was served at both the hotels and at the Hub restaurant. The music was furnished by the Coopers-town orchestra.
