

is healing nicely at this time.

O. L. Anderson had the misfortune of breaking one of his arms in two or three places last Sunday while driving a binder. The binder seat was unable to withstand the heavy weight of Mr. Anderson and when it broke he fell to the platform with the result as stated. He was taken to Cooperstown, but the arm was in such bad condition that it was deemed best to take him to Fargo. It is thought that he will have little use of it.

M. D. Leininger had a dangerous
