

Raybern Bennett, a young man who has been employed by Anton Larson this fall, sustained a bad cut on his head last Saturday, while he was doing some work around a threshing engine. In attempting to place the drive belt on the fly wheel the belt slipped, causing him to lose his balance and in falling he struck his head on the clutch, inflicting a wound three inches long and clear to the bone and severing an artery. He was taken to town and Dr. Truscott dressed the wound, and stopped the flow of blood, the loss of which had left him in a weakened condition. It is thought that the blow on the head affected his mental faculties to some extent as he acted rather queer and attempted to purchase a gun at both hardware stores but was refused. He was under the delusion that the doctor charged him an exorbitant price for services rendered, when, as a matter of fact, the doctor was very reasonable in his charges, and it was necessary to start garnishment proceedings in order to secure the full amount of the bill. The young man was ordered out of town and left on the train yesterday.
