

The "breach of promise" case put on by the members of the Bin Readalit circle, at the opera house Tuesday evening was a little bit the best of anything that has been put on here for some time. It was simply great. Joe Buchheit, sober and with the commanding appearance characteristic of a what a good judge should be, played his part to perfection. Unless the testimony against Judge Cowan can be successfully contradicted, Joe has him beat a mile. Oscar Greenland, as bailiff, was sure the "liniment, kan du tru,"—but than, Oscar hasn't any patience with a bunch of nosiy women anyway. The principals, Miss Pomeroy and Mr. Norman, handled their parts admirably, while Miss Metcalf, as Mrs. Hittitity, was very good. L. P. Larson and F. G. Lewis, as attorneys, could not have been improved. The witnesses, too, came in for their share of applause. All in all, it provoked a great deal of laughter. We ought to have more of them.
