

POSTAL DEPARTMENT RULING

Charge in Time Letters are to be Returned to Sender.

A new ruling of the postal department changes the formal ruling to the time letters are to be held before being returned to the sender in cases where they are not called for. Under the new ruling, the letters will be held ten days unless instructions to the contrary are written or printed on the envelope. The government has urged time after time that the envelopes should have a return card on them. It helps the department to a very great extent and is of great benefit to the sender as well.
