

This is the season of the year which brings to our attention the necessity of a better system of drainage for the village. Every spring some of the streets are flooded with water and people going to and from their homes are forced to wade in mud and slush over their shoe tops. Especially is this true on the streets leading to the school house and to the residences in south Binford. Just why this condition is allowed to exist year after year without any apparent improvement is beyond us to explain, but it is certain that the streets present a veritable lake and fine for boating for the kids. The cellars at The People's Store and Anderson's Pharmacy were filled to the top with water, and in Mr. Anderson's case he stands to lose about $75 worth of cigars. The Times has heard a lot of kick from many of the citizens and it is hoped that we may get a little relief in the years to come.
