

Mail Carrier C. F. Heinsen had a miraculous escape from death last Saturday, while delivering the mail on his route. He was making the trip in his auto, and going south from Louis Schmidt's farm, a little turn in the road caused the car to skid and turn completely over, pinning Mr. Heinsen beneath it, with only one leg showing. He was pinned in such a way that it was impossible for him to move and laid in that position for two hours before help came. Aside from a few bad bruises he is none the worse over the experience, but is thanking his lucky stars it resulted in nothing worse.

Everyone will admit that a live
