

Editor Howard of McHenry, spent a few hours in The Times office last Saturday. Jack is a dandy, good fellow, and all this and all that, but we can't forgive him for calling our press a manure spreader. That's all right, Jack, but wait till we catch you with a bunch of the newspaper gang, and tell them how you locked up a form and had to use all the rules and jack knives in the shop as "dutchman" to keep it from pulling. Hold 'er.
