

over-heated stove in the office of the building and when discovered was burning rapidly and before assistance could be rendered the entire building was a mass of flames. The fire department was on hand in remarkably short time after the fire was discovered, but so fierce were the flames that nothing could be saved as the wind was high and the heat was simply intense. The J. I. Case and Minnesota elevators had a narrow escape.

---