

Mrs. Daniel Sinclair met with a very serious accident last Tuesday evening. She and Mrs. J. G. Mills, with whom she was visiting for a few days, started for Hannaford that evening. Mrs. Mills got out of the rig to put the top up and Mrs. Sinclair held the lines. As the lines were not tied together she dropped one of them, and the horse starting up she could not hold him. She either jumped out or was thrown out and struck on her hip, breaking one of the bones. She was brought to the home of her son, Fred, by John Houghton in his auto, and is doing as nicely as might be expected. The injury is a serious one for one of her age and she will be laid up for a long time.—Sentinel.
