

We are in receipt of a letter from R. B. Vogen, in which he states that he has quit his job with the elevator company and is now on the road for the International Harvester company. The letter was written from Saskatoon, and he says that he just came in from Biggar, where he had been looking after the building of a house on his claim. Mrs. Vogen and the children will move onto the claim next Saturday. He also states that the contractor is at Biggar, with 300 mules, ready to begin operations on the new railroad from Biggar to Calgary. This road will cross his claim and he expects to see a town platted there, and, at that, he says, he has no objections.
