

Kept Him From Drowning.

Dr. Wanner and Druggist Lockett returned home Sunday evening from a combined pleasure and business trip to points in Montana. The druggist who in days gone by has won several medals of honor in trout fishing tried his luck at the favorite sport at one of the famous summer resorts out there and his famous skill in landing the finny tribe has not forsaken him, as he landed some remarkable catches. Doc had never seen much fun in catching little trout but went along with George to keep him from getting drowned. They had a most delightful time and returned by way of Valley City where they met Mrs. Lockett and the children who returned home with them.
