

"ROBBERS" ARE VOUCHED FOR

Bottineau Editor Real Wrathy
Because Men Were Held at Tolna.

The Tolna Tribune was interested in knowing more of the three men, Thomas, Adolph and Joe Yellen, who were held up there as possibly being implicated in the robbery of the N. P. train, and wrote to the Bottineau News for information. Editor Falkenstein answered as follows:

"The above men are three brothers, well-to-do farmers residing near here, and would come no nearer pulling off the N. P. stunt than three priests of their church (Catholic.) They had been away on a visit at the old home in Minnesota and bought an auto to come home in. It must have been an intelligent bunch that took them for robbers."

As the Tribune saw it, it was a combination of unfortunate circumstances for which no one is to blame that puts suspicion on these men, but now that they are satisfactorily vouched for surely there is no reason for further suspicion. This is said because it was stated that there are those who still believe that the Yellen brothers are "the men wanted."
