

Isaac Isacson living near Klotten, Nelson county, was instantly killed near that place when his auto in which he was endeavoring to pass a team on a grade, plunged into a ditch and upset, pinning Mr. Isacson under the car, the back of the front seat resting on the unfortunate man's back. The farmer, who drove the team, endeavored to right the car and save the life of the man under the machine, but was unable to do so, and by the time assistance arrived, the man was dead.
