

Last Friday, while playing near the clothes wringer while his mother was wringing clothes, Hillard, the ten-months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Alfson, got his finger smashed. Dr. Truscott sewed up the torn member. The child being so young, there are hopes for the finger growing together again, but if it doesn't the member will have to be amputated.

The proposition for bonding the