

Binford will be well advertised.

Arbor day was observed very properly in Binford last Friday. The new park on the railway right-of-way was planted to trees and already the appearance thereabouts is very pleasing. Though the trees are small it gives one an idea of what a beauty spot it will be in a few years, and a great deal of credit is due those who encouraged the idea. A large number of trees were also set in on the school grounds and many of the individual property owners are planting trees and shrubbery on their premises. Binford people can proudly and rightfully boast of our town being one of the prettiest and cleanest of the small towns in the state. It's a pleasure to note the improvements. Aren't you glad you're living here?
