

In Memoriam.

In memory of Mrs. Walter Carr, who passed away Aug, 2nd, 1917, at 10:30 a. m.

The sun will rise in its golden splendor, and shine through the long summer day, casting radiance, steady, bright and tender, upon the home of one so early called away. Flowers are blooming round her lowly home, the birds are singing their sweet song of praise and tells of the goodness of her in this tomb, who was as constant as the suns bright rays. Already many a lasting monument finds a place in hearts yet throbbing with bitter pain and grief. On one the memory of a sweet and gentle smile is ever coupled with kind and thoughtful deeds and all that she did will be remembered for a long while for she proved herself to be a true friend in need. O, stricken husband and children, whose hearts with grief are breaking, O, parents, mourn not the transient life so early fled, but look to the Father and see his wisdom for taking your Caroline, who is living and will never be dead.
