

A. C. Geister went to Carrington last Saturday, being called by the news of the illness of two of his children, who, with their mother, are visiting with relatives there. The children were afflicted with scarlet fever rash and were under quarantine. Mr. Geister returned Monday, and stated that the quarantine will be raised this week, allowing them to return home in a few days.

These letters almost contains in-